OLDRAHSITE - FIRST THE GOVERNMENT LOOKS TO THE $$$$

In the short time since the State election on 17 March 2018, there have emerged at least two competing big-money visions for this Park Lands site, and neither vision anticipates returning any part of the site to its owners, the public.

The newly-elected Liberal State Government is threatening to hand over various parts of the old RAH Park Lands site to developers for a range of private commercial interests:

- a five-star luxury hotel (artist's impression above);
- a so-called "innovation, incubator, start-up and growth hub"; and
- an "international centre for tourism, hospitality and food service" (artist's impression, below).

Our new International Centre will accommodate the world renowned Le Cordon Bleu and ICHM training programs, as well as those offered by TAFE at Regency.

We will construct a fit-for-purpose building on the oRAH site to accommodate the study and training programs to be re-located from Regency, and any new programs. The estimated capital cost is $60 million.

This is the Liberal Party's view of what should replace at least part of the old RAH on its Park Lands site. Its "vision" fails to even mention the land's status as part of the Adelaide Park Lands.

OLDRAHSITE - THENADELAIDEUNI LOOKSTO THE$$$$

It's not only the State Government pushing to have more concrete and bricks re-instated where Park Lands should be returned. Since 1875, the University of Adelaide has been gradually expanding its takeover of Park Lands. Recent expansion at the west end of North Terrace for its new Medical School on Park 27, is only the most recent blow.

Now, Adelaide Uni's current Vice-Chancellor Peter Rathjen wants even more. He has an eye on a Federal Government "City Deals" fund for yet more Uni expansion over Park Lands. As he was quoted in The Advertiser on 5 April:

"Where else is there 10 hectares of prime real estate in a little city, right next to a good university, with $90 billion in cash just sloshing around?"

With that logic, we may as well surrender the Park Lands entirely to our University sector.

Of course the proper reply is:

"Where else is there a city surrounded by a garland of irreplaceable Park Lands? What other opportunities will there ever be to return such a significant proportion of previously-alienated Park Lands?"

WILL BIG MONEY WIN? OR WILL "PARKLANDS PEOPLE POWER" PREVAIL?

Whether you want the site returned entirely to Park Lands, or whether you support some new public buildings on the site, there is a fundamental principle at stake; a line in the sand that must not be crossed by any State Government.

If any new buildings replace the old RAH, this public land (Park Lands) should not be commercialised or privatised. It cannot be merely exploited for private profit. It must remain in public hands, for public (not private) benefit.

Around the world, urban park lands and open spaces near cities are coming under more and more pressure.

This headline story in this month's newsletter from World Urban Parks says:

"The world urban population will double from 3.5 billion to over 7.0 billion in the next 40 years. This represents a magnificent opportunity as well as enormous responsibility to support the development of parks and open spaces as critical elements in creating vibrant cities and healthy communities where all citizens will live happier."

Taking a longer view than the present-day development lobby, APPA recognises that whichever cities can preserve their open spaces in the face of population pressures will be the rare jewels on this increasingly urbanised planet. In this overcrowded future, as each world city in turn discards more and more of its open spaces, we in Adelaide will reap the rewards of a vibrant, healthy community enjoying the open spaces that other cities can only dream about.

Vijayawada, Andhra Pradesh, India, 2014.

Park Lands?

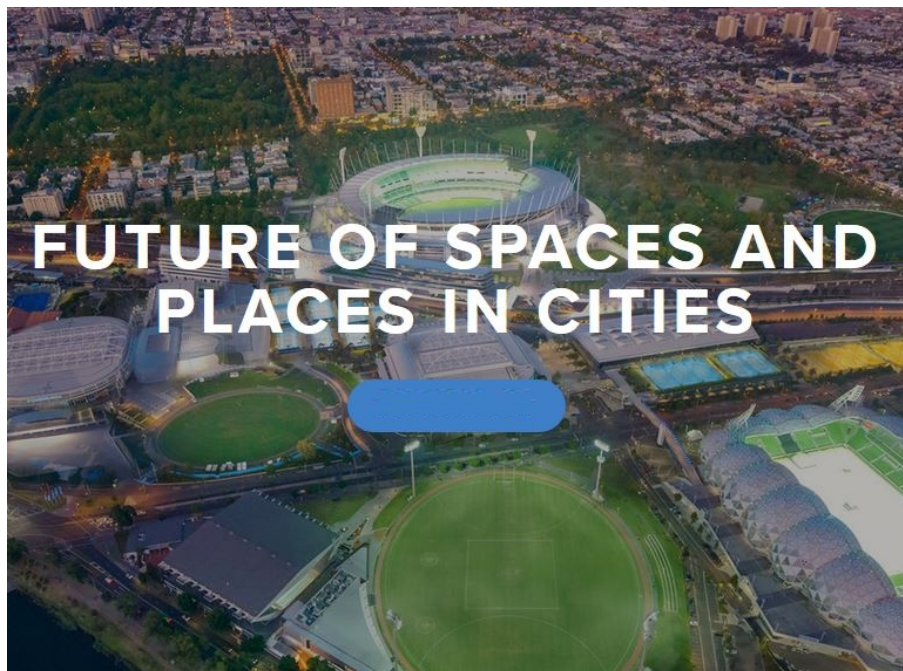

What are they?

With this in mind, parks advocates from around the world are coming to Australia this year to try to find out how best to address the impact urban growth and density are having on our parks, leisure and sport.

The International Parks and Leisure Congress ("IPLC2018") has been scheduled for October 14 to 17 in Melbourne.

As a member of World Urban Parks, APPA will be represented at the Congress. Organisers have called for abstracts of papers to be presented at the Congress. APPA expects to have a slot on the agenda, to highlight the never-ending encroachment of buildings and car parks onto the world-unique Adelaide Park Lands.

ANEWMINISTER - A NEW OPPORTUNITY?

Translate ▾RSS 📡

With the change of State Government from 17 March, there is a new Minister in charge of the Adelaide Park Lands Act 2005.

APPA has written to Stephan Knoll, MP, the new Minister for Transport, Infrastructure and Local Government.

We've requested a meeting, and made three specific suggestions for action, that would strengthen the protection afforded to the Park Lands and to encourage, where possible, return to the public of some alienated portions.

We'll let you know about any response.

COMMERCIALISING THE RIVER

The Adelaide City Council is calling for expressions of interest for "activating" the River Torrens/ Karrawirra Pari, both on the Torrens lake, and downstream adjacent to Bonython Park (pictured).

Maintaining the Park Lands comes at an enormous cost to the City Council – an estimated $15 million per year, according to the Lord Mayor, Martin Haese.

Therefore it's not surprising that the Council is looking at ways to recoup some of that expense from people who might be willing to pay for experiences on the River.

For generations, we have had the Popeye paddle boats and tourist boats, and more recently Adelaide Gondolas, and BBQ Buoys. APPA does not oppose these types of things, because their presence on the river is transitory. No Park Lands are lost by such uses.

We would raise concerns, however, if any potential new commercial uses required new, additional permanent buildings alongside the river. There are already nine boat sheds dotted along the Torrens riverfront, not to mention former boat sheds that have been transformed into cafes and restaurants, effectively excluding the public from some of the most picturesque parts of the Adelaide Park Lands.

And of course, the hulk of the Adelaide Festival's pontoon has been clogging the River at Elder Park since early 2017 year. Therefore you will watch closely the current 'expression of interest' process and report back to you in due course.

APRIL 2018 CONSTRUCTION SITE BULLETIN

It can be hard to keep up with all the construction work that is under way, at any one time, in the Park Lands.

Here's just a few of the projects currently under way, with pictures taken a couple of days ago, in April 2018.

Josie Agius Park / Wikaparntu Wirra (Park 22)
In this Park, work is nearing completion to re-instate the Park Lands trail, after recent re-surfacing and expansion of the Netball Courts.

Quite separately, however, along Greenhill Road, this "deep excavation site" is for gas pipeline works.

NEW SPORTS BUILDING for soccer and athletics clubs
The City Council last October approved the demolition of two old sports sheds in Ellis Park / Tampawardli (Park 24) that have been used by the Adelaide Comets soccer club and the Western Harriers Athletics Club.

At the time, it approved a new building, that would have a smaller overall footprint (490 m2) but would be two-storey. It will include public toilets. The State Government has contributed the lion's share of the construction cost ($3.5 million). Construction is now under way. (See pics above.)

NEW PATHWAY to rail crossing

While the Torrens Rail Junction Project is still underway, work is about to commence on landscaping, and re-grassing this area of J.E. Brown Park (Park 27A) between the river, and War Memorial Drive. Thanks to Peter Bolton for the pics.

Landscaping in Park 25. A "high-quality formal park" is still being developed in Gladys Elphick Park / Narnungga (Park 25) between Port Road and Glover Avenue. This pic was taken from West Tce. The landscaping is intended to "offer a place of respite" for staff and visitors of the new Royal Adelaide Hospital and adjacent North Terrace buildings. Work may be completed about June. Click the picture to read more.

South Park Lands Creek rehabilitation. This photo was taken on 11 April from within Victoria Park, looking westwards. Work is continuing mainly in the adjacent Carriageway Park / Tuthangga (Park 17) near Beaumont Road. Read about the project by clicking the photo.

There is occasionally a problem with works that are NOT done in the Park Lands. The so-called "Urban Beach" over summer, and then the "Royal Croquet Club" during the Fringe both fenced off a huge area at Pinky Flat in Tarntanya Wama (Park 26). The Fringe ended on 18 March but it appears there is no hurry to remediate the site. APPA member Claire Roberts has asked the Council why the commercial operators have not (yet) restored the grassed area at Pinky Flat.

Apart from the sites pictured above, there is ongoing work to:

- create a new 'activity hub' in Pelzer Park /Pityarilla (Park 19); and
- rehabilitate the South Park Lands Creek in Carriageway Park / Tuthangga (Park 17).

APPA understands that neither of these projects will lead to any permanent loss of Park Lands and on that basis we have raised no objections.

However the opposite is true in Park 11, where the ongoing construction of the new "Botanic High School" off Frome Road has erased what little remained of Park Lands in that vicinity.

RARE BUTTERFLY IN VICTORIA PARK

APPA was pleased to have been consulted recently on how to encourage community appreciation of the rare "chequered copper butterfly" population in Victoria Park / Pakapakanthi (Park 16)

There is a small area of remnant native grasses in the southern portion of this Park. The City Council has recently erected signs to explain how this rare butterfly lives in this habitat, in a fascinating symbiosis with ants.

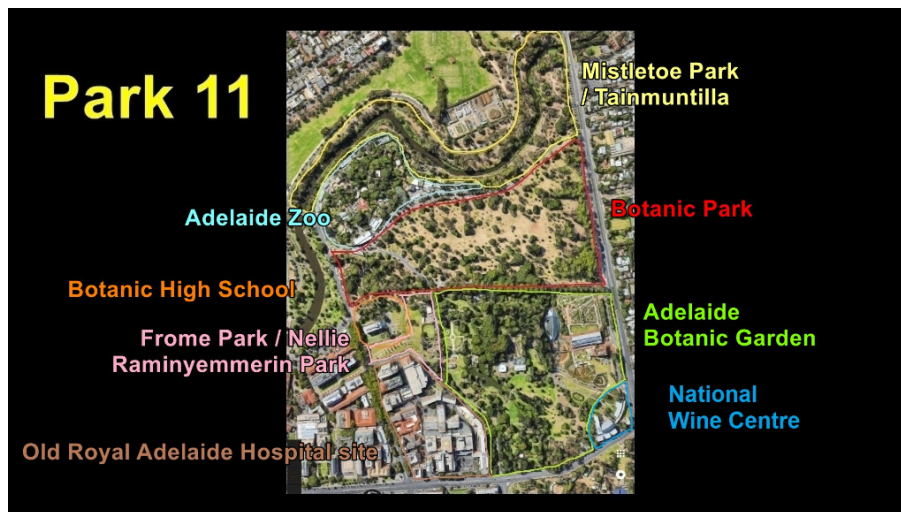

The Council has plans to construct a dirt track and seating, in between patches of this remnant vegetation. Both APPA and Butterfly Conservation SA have given in-principle support for this idea.

You can read more about the chequered copper butterfly here:

STATE HERITAGE LISTING – PROCESS STILL CRAWLING ALONG

No-one can accuse the Heritage SA of rushing their evaluation of the Adelaide Park Lands.

Nine years after APPA (in 2009) nominated the Park Lands for State Heritage listing, the process commenced about 12 months ago, with the appointment of a consultant to assess the Park Lands against the heritage criteria in legislation.

We were warned the process would take about 18 months, but the time frame has slipped out much further than that. We were advised on 19 March that:

"Heritage South Australia expects the consultant to finalise the assessment shortly. Before the nomination/assessment is formally considered by the SA Heritage Council we need to undertake some further work, including:

- engagement with the Kaurna nation about this process, and
- while this particular step is not normally undertaken prior to considering a potential State heritage-listing, because the Adelaide Park Lands is a large and complex space, there is a need to develop some management tools (in partnership with the Adelaide City Council), to ensure that the National and State heritage values of the Adelaide Park Lands are appropriately conserved. This exercise will necessarily involve consultation with key stakeholders including the Adelaide Parklands Preservation Association.

Therefore the SA Heritage Council will not consider the Adelaide Park Lands nomination/assessment until this work has been completed."

As in recent years, the AGM will be held in the Don Pyatt hall in the Norwood Town Hall. Arrive at 9.30am for a 10am start. Voting rights at the AGM are reserved for current financial members, but all Park Lands supporters are welcome to attend.

Guest speaker will be Greens leader, the Hon. Mark Parnell, MLC on the topic: "What prospects for improved Park Lands protection in the new Parliament?"

More details here: <http://www.adelaide-parklands.asn.au/agm2018>

NB: After booking the hall some weeks ago, we were subsequently advised that there will be a "Wiggles" show upstairs directly above us, at the same time. Therefore, we expect some inconvenience in getting into the building at the same time as the Wiggles' pre-school fans, not to mention a few stray sounds from upstairs! We apologise in advance for any problems this may cause. Please allow extra time for transport and parking!

BRIEFLY, IN OTHER PARK LANDS NEWS

We love the description of the Park Lands from The Advertiser's Tory Shepherd (pictured) on March 28, p5 as:

"the stellar loop of green that includes pristine gardens, kilometres of running tracks, dog parks, and sporting facilities."

We also agree with her plea for more low-impact solar lighting in selected popular areas. The Park Lands must always contain a mixture of recreational areas, gardens, and bushland. Obviously not all areas need to be illuminated, but this is a no-brainer for selected walking/jogging and cycling trails.

The City Council is preparing a Master Plan for Whitmore Square/Iparrityi "to reinforce the role of the square, and to set a clear vision for the square's future."

A brief 3-week period of consultation opened just after our last newsletter was distributed and has already closed. However there will be another opportunity later this year for comment on the draft Master Plan. Click the picture for more info.
